

OSHA and Workplace Safety Certification

Safety Management: Each industry has its own requirements specific to the type of work and machinery used. However, all employers still have to comply with the general duties clause which obligates the employer to create a safe work environment. We'll review the general obligations and how to keep the workplace safe.

Emergency Management: One of the growing concerns amidst the current climate we live in is current or former employees taking out vengeful acts on others. This course we'll discuss the best ways to de-escalate situations, plans for evacuation, and active shooter training.
